Deportation Looms For Elderly, Sick D.C. Filipino Couple

BY TERRY DAVENPORT

/During World War II, Angel Fidelino risked his life fighting for the American cause in his native land of the Philippines.

Today, although he and his wife Eresvita have lived in Daly City for 6-1/2 years, are permanent resident aliens and five of their children are U.S. citizens, the couple faces possible deportation back to the Philippines.

Sending them back to the Philippines would be "tantamount to the death sentence," according to one son, Antonio Fidelino of Daly City.

Another son, Alberto Fidelino, and a daughter, Edith Bucoy, also live in Daly City. Angel and Eresvita live with Antonio and his wife Corazon.

Antonio said the Philippines, which have been under Ferdinand Marcos' martial rule since 1972, lack the proper medical facilities for his ailing parents.

Even the trip back, e said, might mean death for his 73-year-old father, who suffers from heart failure, hypertension, diabetes and edema.

His 71-year-old mother, who would have died in 1977 were it not for an operation she had in the U.S., has diabetes and severe anemia.

Like other members of the family, they are opposed to Marcos' militaristic policies.

Angel and Eresvita Fidelino said they have considered suicide as an alternative to returning to the Philippines.

The dispute with immigration authorities arose last Nov. 7, when the elderly couple was returning from a two-month visit to the Philippines. As they passed through the port of entry at Honolulu, an immigration official seized their alien registration receipt cards (called "green cards') and passports.

The Fidelinos said no charges were made against them at that time and they didn't think they were in serious trouble.

Then, on Nov. 17, a San Francisco immigration official told them they would face an exclusion hearing, unless they posted $6,000 in public charge bonds Dec. 1. That deadline was extended Dec. 1 until Jan. 15.

Their crime was that they had received Supplemental Security Income (SSI) and Medicaid benefits for two years while living in the U.S.

Antonio said an immigration official told him the $6,000 would be confiscated if his parents became public charges again.

It is his opinion that his parents' papers were seized because he was honest enough to return their $251 monthly checks to the Social Security Administration for the two months that they were abroad.

Margaret Ramos, a San Francisco immigration officer, explained that the couple really has three choices: to post the $6,000, to return to the Philippines or to argue their case before an immigration judge and abide by his decision.

"People don't understand that they have a choice," she said.

Under immigration law, Ms. Ramos said, permanent resident aliens like Angel and Eresvita Fidelino must make a new application to return to the U.S. if they make a "meaningful departure," which she defined as "an extended trip — not just running across the Mexican border and back to buy a rug."

The immigration officer explained that collecting public funds is one reason that aliens may be classified as excludable.

"The rule states that this alien is likely to become a public charge," she said.

But Ms. Ramos stressed, "We leave it up to the immigration judge to make the final decision. They can have an exclusion hearing and let the judge decide."

Angelo said his family has seen too many other Filipinos deported to trust the ruling of an immigration judge.

They also say they can't afford the $6,000. As a research analyst with the state Department of Industrial Relations, he takes home $778.99 per month. Nearly $500 of his monthly salary goes to his credit union, to pay off three loans.

The government deducts about $250 from each of his paychecks, leading Angelo to wonder why his tax dollars, and those paid during the last 18 years by his four sisters and brothers working in the U.S., can't be used to help out an aging couple that did so much for America in the past.

During World War II, Angel Fidelino was part of a guerilla movement, recognized by the U.S., against the Japanese. The Philippines were under American rule until 1946, when the country became a democratic republic.

Angel, it is pointed out, risked his life by giving medical supplies, money and shelter to the men who eventually defeated Japanese General Yamashita, the highly feared "Tiger of Malaysia."

His family also was in danger because the Japanese secret military police tortured and even killed members of the underground movement.

Ironically, Antonio believes his father's war hero record is considered a detriment by immigration officials, who sense that persons with enthusiasm for U.S. causes will seek citizen status, have a good chance of obtaining it and thus will Antonio Fidelino, left, plans strategy at his Daly City home with his parents, Angel, center, and Eresvita Fidelino, to prevent their being deported to their native Philippine Islands. The latest word is that the Fidelinos must pay $6,000 to the U.S. government by Jan. 15 or leave the country. The family has resided in Daly City for several years.

SLOW MOVING HOUSES

Council Okays House Moving Delay

Reminded of their promise to have Lincoln Park ready many months ago, Daly City City Council members seemed anxious Monday night to order the remaining structures on the site demolished.

Instead, they granted the owners of four houses more time to move them and accepted a bid of $2,010 for a fifth house that the owner will have up to 90 days to move.

The city owns 16 of the 17 properties on the proposed site of Lincoln Park, which will be bounded by Brunswick, Winchester, Templeton and Acton Streets in the Crocker section of Daly City.

Allie Sampson of 967 Brunswick St. is the only homeowner on the block who has refused to sell his house to the city.

Delays in the park plans have been caused by the laborious process of seeking bids on the houses. Each owner has 30 days to pay and 60 days to move the house.

After that, as it has in most cases the council may order the homes demolished — even though their owners have paid the city for them.

But the council hasn't had the heart to demolish any homes yet, although citizens have complained repeatedly that they are hazardous for young children in the neighborhood.

The council scheduled hearings on the disposition of some of the remaining houses for Jan. 22 and Feb. 12.

It also accepted Alva Anderson's high bid of $2,010 for the house at 201 Templeton St.

After Anderson pays for the house (within 30 days), he will have 60 days to move it.

The council postponed action until Jan. 22 on another citizen's request that he be allowed to bid on two houses that the city hasn't advertised yet for sale.

"We have this time problem," Mayor William Schumacher explained.

To Make Up for Less Money

County to Help Stock D.C. Libraries

Daly City libraries may not be open as long as before, but they'll have more books than ever, thanks to some recent bartering between the county and the city.

City Librarian Samuel Chandler's screams could be heard all the way to Redwood City last fall when the county canceled its longstanding annual agreement to pay Daly City $25,000 in return for providing library services to at least 1,950 residents of Colma and nearby unincorporated areas.

Last week, the City Council protested the county's recent compromise offer to pay 61 percent of the original amount ($15,250), provided Daly City continues serving the unincorporated areas.

Chandler announced Monday that he and the Daly City Library Board had worked out another compromise with the county.

Under the proposed arrangement, the county would loan Daly City $6,000 worth of books from the county book stock. The minimum number of volumes would be 400, the maximum 600.

Added to the $15,250 the county has agreed to pay, the total value of the contract would be $21,250 — 85 percent of last year's.

Chandler explained that different volumes could be substituted and that the agreement would be in effect as long as the contract was valid.

Councilmen weren't enthusiastic about the plan.

Mayor William Schumacher pointed out that the city would not benefit from a $6,000 loan during the second year of the contract.

Councilman Victor Kyriakis noted that the city's $6,000 in books would decrease in value as inflation took its toll.

The council finally agreed to ratify the contract with the county for one year only.

Other business:

RESIGNATION — The council reluctantly accepted City Clerk Anna Ohlendorf's resignation, effective April 1. The city will have 30 days after that date to appoint a new city clerk or to call a special election. Mrs. Ohlendorf, who served as city clerk for 16 years, said she is retiring to spend more time with her husband, who retired last year.

YOUTH CENTER — Eddie C. Welbon quoted from the Scriptures about the necessity of mankind working together while pleading that the council continue to support his youth employment center.

FEPC Drops D.C. Suit

Citing "insufficient evidence" as its reason, the Fair Employment Practices Commission has dropped a discrimination suit filed against Daly City by a building inspector with the city, Daly City officials learned Thursday.

Mel Tafoya, a building inspector with the city since 1972, had charged that he was denied a promotion last summer because he has a Spanish surname.

Tafoya claimed that City Manager David Rowe promoted a man with two years less experience with the city to the position of acting chief building inspector.

"We both had equal qualifications. In appointments before, the city always has gone on a seniority basis," Tafoya said.

Rowe remarked that seniority has nothing to do with appointments under the Civil Service system and stressed that the appointment was a temporary assignment.

After hearing the FEPC's decision, Tafoya said he is considering asking the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission to take on the case.

ning Council has had its non-profit corporate status suspended.

"We could bring out other problems but we believe in burying the hatchet," Welbon said.

JOBS — Ernest Pezzola complained that 30 new city jobs recently funded with federal money under the Comprehensive Education and Training Act do not include police or street division positions. City Manager David Rowe said those two departments did not request any jobs and that the positions were approved by the county, not the city.

SHELTERS — The council approved a contract authorizing the location of seven bus shelters in Daly City that the San Mateo County Transit District has agreed to build and maintain.

SIGNALS — The council agreed to appropriate an additional $4,133 to install pedestrian signals at the intersection of Mission and East Market streets. The signals are being installed in a joint project with the California Department of Transportation.

Fitzgerald Wanted Out

Ward Takes Sanitation Job

County Supervisor John Ward Tuesday was appointed to fill the slot vacated by Supervisor James Fitzgerald on the North San Mateo County Sanitation District's Board of Directors.

Although NSMCSD chairman William Schumacher announced Monday that the appointment wouldn't be effective until Tuesday, when the supervisors were scheduled to approve the change, Ward sat in Fitzgerald's chair throughout the session.

Under the supervisors' rules, the sanitation board seat should have gone to Board Chairman Fred Lyon, but was passed to Ward because of a conflict in Lyons' schedule. Lyon instead will represent the board on the Bay Conservation and Development Commission.

Fitzgerald asked last Friday that he not be reappointed to the Sanitation District board, on which he served 14 years, following accusations that he traded business favors with a consultant to the district.

The district also has been under fire due to recent overcharges of 22,000 customers and a $9 million difference between the secondary treatment plant's original estimated cost and its current cost.

Additional modifications must be made to the plant to correct noise and odor problems.

No action was taken Monday on the pressing problem of overcharges amounting to $400,000.

Richard Dwyer, an outside accountant, reported that the board either could put the extra money into a reserve fund, to be credited to customers on future bills, on could refund the $400,000 — at a cost of about $100,000 for processing the individual refunds.

He said the average overcharge was 28 percent.

At Ward's urging, the board asked its staff to present more alternatives at the next board meeting.

The board was unable to award a $98,200 contract for correcting the treatment plant's noise problem, because the state has not yet authorized the expenditure.

The board's next meeting will be at 1 p.m. Jan. 15 at 153 Lake Merced Blvd., Daly City.

Broadmoor Won't Pay Legal Fee

Superior Court Judge Melvin Cohn Thursday denied a motion by an attorney who sought legal authority to make the residents of Broadmoor pay his $19,298 bill.

Wayne McFadden, a San Mateo attorney, had argued that the entire unincorporated district should pay his fee because all Broadmoor residents benefited from a case he handled that stopped previous Broadmoor commissioners from signing a seven-year police service contract with Daly City.

McFadden won the case, which was filed in June 1977 by seven Broadmoor residents, arguing that it was unlawful for the commissioners to commit Broadmoor's future commissions to a seven-year contract during the period when Broadmoor lost its own police. The department had been unable to find liability insurance.

Cohn determined that the legality of the seven-year contract was questionable and, therefore, it never was signed. An appellate court upheld Cohn's finding.

Broadmoor subsequently found an insurance policy and its police district has been back in business since last Feb. 28.

Cohn ruled Thursday, "The court finds no legal justification for ordering attorneys' fees to be paid by the defendant Police District... While the suit prevented an illegal act, the residents of the Police District would have had police protection regardless of the outcome and the lawsuit produced no discernable benefit to the taxpayers of the district.

"Indeed, it might well be argued that if the court forced the taxpayers to pay a legal bill of the magnitude requested, it would be a significant blow to the taxpayers rather than a benefit. The motion for attorneys' fees is therefore denied."

McFadden said Thursday, "I, of course, respect the judge very much as a jurist, but I believe he is wrong with respect to the law."

McFadden added that he would like to appeal Cohn's decision, but he said, "It's up to my clients to decide if we will seek an appeal."

His clients are Randy and Bonita Wall, Jerry and Linda Biagini and Michael Handlin of Broadmoor, Ralph Damon of Garden Village and Susan Johnson, a former Broadmoor resident who now lives in Pacifica. Randy Wall is a Broadmoor police commissioner.

Were it not for the case that he argued on their behalf, McFadden said, "there would be no local government in Broadmoor."

The attorney noted that the benefits of his legal victory were equally conferred on all Broadmoor residents.

He said allowing the seven-year contract for Daly City police services to stand would have taken away the primary function that Broadmoor commissioners are elected to provide.

The commissioners oversee the Broadmoor Police District.

Asked if he considers his $19,298 fee to be excessive, McFadden produced a copy of his bill, which indicates he did not charge for 102 of the 574 hours he and his staff claim to have spent on the case.

McFadden said his fees on the case ranged from $35 to $50 per hour and that his rates currently are from $50 to $60 per hour.

Noting that he did not take the case with any special fee arrangement, McFadden remarked that he expects his clients to pay the bill if the unincorporated district won't.

become "permanent burdens" on the country.

Antonio said one immigration attorney told him that two Japanese-Americans in Honolulu have been working with immigration authorities to create problems for Filipinos.

"Perhaps they are getting even because of the war," he said.

He also believes that immigration officials are hurting his parents' chances of becoming U.S. citizens.

At an Aug.2 hearing, they were told that their applications would be approved within three months, pending verification of his father's military records. They haven't heard a word since.

What bothers him most is that other aliens are permitted to collect SSI and Medicaid without question. In fact, Antonio said many are encouraged to apply when they drop by Social Security offices to ask questions. He added that his parents had to declare their immigration status when they applied for SSI.

The supplemental income rules state that "citizens or lawful residents of the U.S." are eligible for the payments.

"They certainly are lawful residents," Antonio said.

A friend of the family, who asked not to be named because of his involvement in anti-Marcos movements, said, "The obvious solution is to cut off all public assistance to immigrants. But the government will never do that because congressmen have relatives who are immigrants who can't afford to live here without it."

Antonio said the selective way in which immigration authorities are deporting Asians, and Filipinos in particular, from the port of Honolulu is a clear case of discrimination.

He explained that immigration officials in Chicago and New York, ports of entry through which mainly Europeans pass, do not confiscate passports and "green cards" as readily.

"While our parents were discriminately chosen and are being cruelly penalized, countless immigrants from various countries, refugees the approximately 150,000 Vietnamese, with thousands more coming, are just one example, not that we are against helping them, and illegal aliens, who number in the millions, are free to receive government help in various forms," he argued.

Noting that his father could suffer a heart attack at any time and his mother is in danger of a recurrence of a serious illness, Antonio said, "Our parents, by spending for our education and training, made it possible for us to come to the United States and become taxpaying individuals. Why can't our parents then also come and stay in the U.S.?"

Immigration officials are scheduled to determine their fate Jan. 15.

League of Women Voters: Image Reality

Perspective

By ARVILLE FINACOM

I knew I was late and that discussion would have begun already. I let myself into the Burlingame home as noiselessly as possible, made my way to the family room, nodded to hostess Joan Compagna whom I knew and to two other acquaintances, Meta Berry of Millbrae and Jean Richanbach of Burlingame, then settled down to play "fly-on-the-wall" at a League of Women Voters unit meeting.

For years I'd known about the League; doesn't everyone? Its members are often characterized as poised, polished, intelligent, extremely well-infirmed women, interested in and concerned about the world around them.

My many acquaintances "in League" fit the image as LWV "types", but neither the "image" nor the "type" presents the whole league picture. Actually, League of Women Voters of the United States is somewhat of a misnomer. Men are members, too; but they, as much as the women in leadership, want to keep the name as it is because of general public familiarity with it and because if it were given up, another group could assume it and possibly distort the view and intent of the original organization.

But back to the LWV unit meeting. It was one of five that mid-November week in homes throughout central San Mateo County at which "water" was being discussed and at which members were "coming to consensus" on a series of questions related specifically to water reclamation.

For anyone unfamiliar with the term, "reaching concensus" can be mystifying. Actually, "consensus" is defined simply enough as "general agreement," but the process by which a group reaches it involves study, discussion, and a precise narrowing of the topic to a point where agreement is possible.

After spending two hours watching the process — of five questions, the 16 members I observed agreed on three, discarded one and attached a qualifier to another — I found myself with many questions, chief among them who decides League topics, proposes appropriate questions, and assembles and interprets the results. For answers I talked with Shirley Hort of Millbrae, current president of LWV of Central San Mateo County.

At the outset Mrs. Hort assured me League units nationwide (there are 80-plus in California alone) are autonomous, "not chapters of a higher organization." This autonomy gives members a sense of power and equality at the state and national levels unmatched in other large volunteer organizations.

A convention fund, paid into by local leagues and disbursed to delegates according to a "distance from convention site" formula, removes unequal cost factors from convention participation and guarantees each League a voice in decision making.

During a two-year period, each League elects to study one or more state and/or national topics as well as devote time to local and area wide issues. Topics are chosen at biennial national and state conventions (occurring in alternate years) from among suggestions made by local leagues. Thus, for some, the idea and the implementation meet full circle. A League could decide to study in greater depth an issue which it suggested originally for state or national consideration.

Following study and consensus by local leagues, state and national League positions also are adopted by consensus, which Mrs. Hort defines as "that which we substantially agree upon." She adds that "no percentage is put on agreement," making the process a little different from majority rule.

Action follows consensus in that League activities following the adoption of a position are political in nature. As League founder Carrie Chapman Catt said, "The only way to get things done is to get them done on the inside of a political party . . ." Indeed, many members feel impelled to conduct forml or informal lobbying at all levels of government once a League study has acquainted them with the many ramifications of an issue.

Study, consensus and political action are only one facet of League activity, the second part of its statement of purpose which has remained sustantially the same since the group organized in 1920: ". . . to foster education in citizenship and to support improved legislation."

Dedicated to the belief, as Mrs. Hort says, that "in the informed and active participation of the public is the foundation of democracy," LWV members work in voter registration campaigns, prepare and distribute "even-handed" information about issues and candidates, provide moderators for forums and debates, furnish speakers to explain issues and attend local regional board meetings of public bodies as trained observers.

Additionally, if the League has a position on a topic, members will explain the League stand to any other interested group and tailor the presentation to the other organization's specific interests. League members also train leaders of any organization that requests it in "process procedure": Conducting meetings, handling dissent, perfecting discussion leading, and moderating. The leagues — local, state, and national — publish a great many materials funded substantially by education grants from the LWV Education Fund, set up in 1960, to which individuals or corporate groups may make tax-deductible contributions.

Any citizen 18 years or older interested in "knowing what is going on" may join the League. Involvement is as much or as little as the individual wishes. Some merely pay dues ($20 a year; the student/senior rate is $15.) then receive and read printed materials. Others attend unit meetings and take part in consensus. Some involve themselves deeply in study questions, attend workshops, do field study and primary research, and equip themselves as topic experts. Still others learn to moderate discussions, "tailor" debates, set ground rules for groups and determine and execute effective public meeting procedure.

Those who spend much time working within the League gain an unmistakable sense of confidence and acquire "a certain smartness" as Mrs. Horte puts it; "but we try not to be intimidating," she adds.

Perhaps the most important aspect of League activity is the laboratory it provides for practice in organizing ideas, focusing, and taking control of them. According to Mrs. Hort, the confidence, knowledge and expertise that serious involvement in the League brings often leads to career participation in business and industry as in the League brings often leads to career participation in business and industry as well as government, where a high percentage of elected legislators and appointed officials are League members who can trace their early interest and involvement in participatory democracy to League activity.

Other People's Lawns

It's Your Dog — Your Mess

By ALAN QUALE

The next time you take Fido for a walk and he has a call of nature on someone else's lawn, you'd better clean it up.

Especially if you are walking in Foster City, Burlingame or Daly City, three cities which have specifically spelled out such doggie don't-don'ts in their animal control laws. Officials indicated enforcement will soon begin.

The Foster City and Daly City laws have been on the books for several years, while Burlingame's was only recently enacted.

Since a law isn't much good unless people know about it, Foster City Hall distributed a press release which states it is illegal for any persons to permit their pet to eliminate on someone else's property if the pet owner "does not immediately thereafter remove and clean up such animal excreta from the public or private property."

Violators could receive a maximum $50 fine for the first offense and a $100 fine for the second. If Fido and his owner are negligent a third time within the same year, they could be fined up to $250.

Burlingame's amendment to their animal control ordinance, approved in October, says it is illegal for pet owners to allow their animals' excreta to remain on public or private property "without the owner's consent."

Daly City first approved a law in 1971 requiring owners to pick up after their pets. The city recently increased the maximum fine for the first offense from $25 to $50.

A survey of several other Peninsula cities reveals they also have sections in their animal control ordinances which officials said could be used, and have been used, to cite pet owners for such negligence.

San Mateo, for instance, has a section which prohibits animals from damaging public or private property.

City Attorney Maurice Hamilton said if a dog defecates on a homeowner's property "there isn't much question" that some damage has occurred.

Other cities have codes to cite pet owners when their pets create a "nuisance" and some have laws to cite pet owners for failing to keep their pets under "proper control."

South San Francisco's animal control ordinance says it is illegal for people to allow their pets to trespass on someone else's property "without the consent of the owner." A spokesman for the city attorney's office said, "you could also apply that to a dog 'doing its number' on someone else's property."

"What Foster City has done (in their ordinance) is spell out this act," said Hamilton. "Let's say their ordinance is more X-rated than ours."

Hamilton said the San Mateo City Council also has "bantered about" the possibility of introducing a "pooper scooper law" similar to San Francisco's, which requires pet owners to carry a scoop and pick up their animal's excreta, and a bag to deposit it in. Pet owners are required to carry the scoop and bag whenever they walk their pet off their property.

The San Francisco law is much more effective than the Foster City or Burlingame animal codes, according to Tony Koester, manager of animal control services for the Peninsula Humane Society.

In Foster City, Koester said, an officer would have to observe the actual offense in order to cite the pet owner.

"You have to be in the right place at the right time."

But in San Francisco, an officer need only spot a person walking a dog without a pooper scooper and they can be written up on the spot, he added.

Nevertheless, Koester said he believes most animal control laws such as San Francisco's are mostly written as a deterrent and not for rigid enforcement.

"It is a common-sense type of ordinance for people to respect other people's property."

On the other hand, some enforcement is necessary to get the point across, added Koester. He said most pet owners are not ignorant of an animal control law "as much as they are not paying attention to it."

Cities throughout San Mateo County are presently amending their various animal control ordinances to make them more uniform so that the PHS can more efficiently enforce such laws from one city to the next, Koester noted.

One of the problems in the past, said Koester, is that animal control laws "would change from one side of the street to the other."

So far, however, only Foster City, Burlingame and Daly City have specific wordage in their animal control ordinances instructing pet owners to pick up after their pets.

Local police said the most common complaint they receive concerning a pet is a barking dog.

The second most common complaint is dogs defecating on someone else's property.

Koester said complaints about an animal's behavior "are at the root of many neighborhood disputes" and pet owners are often "hostile toward authorities" when the authorities show up.

There is a cliche often used by PHS officers and local police, according to Koester: "You don't mess with people's cars or their animals."

However, since there are now at least 130,000 dogs in San Mateo County and many of them continue to "mess" on other people's property, the need for some sort of enforcement is obvious, Koester added.

In the meantime, citizens who like to take their pets for walks around the neighborhood should "buy a pooper scooper," Koester said. "They are very inexpensive and effective."

Pooper scoopers can be purchased at most pet shops and also at the PHS, which maintains a shop.

A clerk at the PHS pet shop said pooper scoopers generally run from about $3 to $6.

She said sales of the pooper scoopers have been brisk. "The demand is ever present," she said.

ONE DOG, ONE SCOOP

At the Humane Society, Vinn Emmaneel, right, receives an adopted dog and a "pooper scooper" to pick up after it. Adoption specialist Sue Natoli distributes a scooper and bags with each animal.

Pacifican Travels to Learn and Explore

By HEIDI VAN ZANT

William Cate sure is a lucky man.

This Pacifica resident is a present-day adventurer who has found an unusual way to finance his trips to such exotic places as Africa and South America.

He buys gems and minerals as he travels about the countryside and then sells them to buyers from the United States and foreign countries.

At the end of this month, he'll be off to Arizona and Mexico. In June, he will make his annual trip down the Amazon River and in the fall, he may go back to Africa.

"I'm a believer that life consists of learning and exploring," said Cate, 40, who has been a traveler all his life.

A free-lance writer and photographer by profession, Cate said he also raises money for his trips by writing travel articles.

"My motivation has always been to roam around," he said. "It's fun to be floating rivers. It's fun prospecting an old mine. I'm having a lot of fun living my life."

His life has not always been as free from routine as it is today. He has been a college professor, a dean of students and worked with juvenile delinquents.

Even as a child, Cate said, he knew he wanted a life of travel.

"Some people wanted to be firemen; I wanted to be an explorer," he said. "Every time I got a little money, I would take off for somewhere."

Although he has a master's degree in geology, "You need not have a couple of science degrees," Cate noted. Anybody can do what I'm doing."

Cate said he discovered only a few years ago that he could finance his trips to faraway places by buying and selling gems and minerals, such as diamonds, emeralds, rubies and turquoise.

Before he takes off on a trip, Cate said he will pick a country he wants to visit and comb the local libraries for information about that country.

He travels alone on these trips and prefers to stay away from large cities.

Finding contacts is not difficult, Cate said. For example, when traveling in Mexico, he puts two signs on his pick-up truck, advertising the fact that he buys mineral specimens.

The average transaction involves about $200, he said, adding that when he spends $200 he expects to get $2,000 back when he sells the gems or minerals.

He never has been robbed and does not carry a gun.

Although he spends most of his time in the back country, he never has been seriously ill.

"I take every shot in the book" before leaving, Cate said. And he carries a medicine kit with him.

Over the years, he has performed two emergency appendectomies on Indians. One lived and the other died the next day from an infection.

In some areas, Cate said, he has had trouble with the police.

"One of the groups I would like to stamp out is the drug smuggler," Cate said, noting that frequently the police suspect him of being a drug dealer.

The gems he buys are sold to private collectors and museums. Cate said his annual income is about $15,000.

He has been broke many times, he said, and now is looking for ways to make more money. This year he would like to find a way to make a million dollars.

This past weekend, he conducted a workshop on "Income Opportunities for Adventurers." He said that for $250 he teaches others what has cost him thousands of dollars to learn.

Cate, who is married, lives in a modest home in the Linda Mar section of Pacifica.

Has spending six months of every year traveling around the world changed him?

"Has it made me a better person? I really don't know," was his reply.

But William Cate is having fun.

Golf course explorer

By Hal Gevertz

It's always of great interest and pleasure visiting a new golf course, especially when it's opening their fairway and putting doors for the first time. That happened to me recently when the Crow Canyon Country Club had a grand opening of its back nine on a Theodore Robinson-designed 18-hole golf course. The first nine was opened in November, 1977.

As golf course building prices go today, $1.5 million was spent in erecting this par 69, 6,100-yard course. That price includes over 3,000 mulberry, eucalyptus and pine trees to grace these former sun-bleached, barren hills, nestled in the Danville-San Ramon Valley near Mt. Diablo. After a few years of maturing, these trees certainly will add a demanding quality in relation to the carefree style of shotmaking the day I played.

The Crow Canyon course is snuggled among a 1,000-home development and you will see contrasting architectural styles of attractive condominiums, townhouses and homes hugging its outskirts.

Five lakes project their placid charm and notably come into play on two of the best designed par threes in California. The 190-yard one-shot 6th, that carries a 3 handicap, has a strategic expanse of water wrapping itself around the right flank of the green. What little fairway is exposed on the roadway abridged left, leads up to an elevated green with excellent bunker distribution to snare off-line tee shots.

The 145-yard 12th is a captivating charmer interrupted by a retaining wall of exposed rocks holding up an interesting putting surface. But don't step too far back lining up a putt on the right perimeter or you could just end up dripping back to the clubhouse for a change of gear after taking an unexpected bath.

The front nine moves through a compressed neighborhood and at times I had the feeling that I would be visiting some backyards and patios while losing golf balls and strokes along the way. Crow Canyon golf course contains all kinds of lies on level to down and uphill terrain, but none of them severe enough to make the course fatiguing. Dual cart and drainage cement paths systematize the 18 holes and when a golf ball finds that inflexible surface unintentionally, it could add a few strokes to one's shot and hopefully in the right direction.

The inward nine gives the golf swing and ball more room to move about. The homes bordering this side of the course are farther from the fairways and they won't come into play unless one's game is wild and uncontrollable. The longest hole on the course is the par 5, 545, 2nd and its number one rating comes from its length, accompanied by an undulating narrow fairway, hefty rough and fine trap placements.

The 355-yard sharp dogleg right 15th can be pared with relative ease unless you decide to take a trip where a lake is standing vigil, 200 yards from the tee. The incoming shot from that right quarter will take you over that large expanse of water to a two-level green with sterling sand bunkers to thwart your way to safety.

The par four, 410-yard 18th is a classic hole to complete your round at Crow Canyon. The fairway is situated in a small valley which the tee placement looking down at all this beauty from a hillock location. Three separate bodies of water angle along the left and frontal portion of the fairway, with plenty of greenery on the right. The incoming over-the-water shot has an uphill climb to a highly-elevated three-bunkered green.

The Kentucky Blue and bent turf grasses of Crow Canyon can't be evaluated for quality and performance for at least three or four years. The 67 resplendent sand bunkers of free-form art certainly enhance the attractiveness of the course. Along with unwieldly rough and out of bounds around the course, these alternating splash and deeper designed traps will help make up for the short yardage on display here.

The pleasing and uncomplicated greens range from 3,500 to 6,000 square feet and are very mature for their newness. They certainly putt like you see them and if you start looking for breaks that aren't there you will end up missing more than you should regardless of the many hillside locations.

A magnificent $4.5 million, two-story clubhouse, 13 lighted tennis courts and an AAU competition-size pool with one- and three-meter diving boards surround this beautiful landscaped setting. It's worth a trip just to walk through this lovely country club of stained glass ceilings, crystal chandeliers and rich walnut and redwood paneling.

Crow Canyon golf course was built for the middle-of-the-road player, but it always will give a good test of play to golfers of all skills who try this quality layout.

The Gamesman

Peter Rabbit's Birthday

By RICHARD C. MOON

The Ideal Toy Corp. seems to have a lot of games on the market that combine action and dimension. That is, they are not board games played on a flat surface but consists of structures of one sort or another.

Payoff Machine is a good one for two to six players ages seven and older. I'm always a little amused when I write the age levels — perhaps because I'm supposed to be a mature adult and yet I really like most games marked for seven and up and I do think adults will get as much fun out of Payoff as the kids.

The game equipment consists of a tower about eight inches high by three inches in diameter, a base, and a supply of small balls.

The top of the tower is a cap containing nine holes. The rest of the tower is divided into tumblers. There are six tumblers. The three large ones can be rotated and the three smaller ones remain fixed. Each tumbler contains a number of holes. The idea is to place balls in the top of the tower and, by rotating tumblers, work them to the bottom. It is like a sort of combination lock. You drop balls into the tower and then slowly turn the tumblers being careful to listen as the balls do or do not fall to the next level.

The object of the game is to be the first player to get 25 points. The different colored balls have different point values. On a turn, a player may place as many as 10 points worth of balls into the tower.

You can select the part indicated from the bone pile or take that part from your own pile and give it to another player — or connect an arm or leg to a torso — or take that part from another player's collection of bones, provided it is not attached to a torso. You must exercise one of the options. This means that even though you need a part to complete your skeleton, you may have to give it up.

This game is one of those that is simple in concept and yet great fun. And, of course, the main thing that makes it fun is that you do play it in the dark!

If pieces "fade" during play all you need do is turn on the lights for a few seconds to recharge them.

Children of about five years old can play it without much difficulty and I would recommend it not only for children but for adults too.

The $4.25 dinner feature also includes soup, salad, pasta, and two vegetables. Served every day from 5 to 9 p.m. . . . It has been an extra-busy week for BILL MONRO and his staff at ROSEBUD'S ENGLISH PUB, in the heart of San Francisco's Geary Street "Theater Row." Theatergoers are flocking in to feast on prime ribs and other superb entrees before catching "Dracula" at the Curran and A.C.T. stage shows at the Geary. Both theaters are right across the street . . . Great food and reasonable prices are still a winning combination at TILLIE'S, located in the coastside's scenic Moss Beach area. Since opening her German and continental restaurant over two years ago, Owner TILLIE SCHOLTZ hasn't raised her prices one Deutschmark.

Larsons Celebrate 1st Year As Owners

NORM and FERN LARSON, one of the most popular husband-and-wife teams in the restaurant business, are celebrating their first anniversary as owners of the KING'S TABLE in Redwood City. It has been a very good year for the Larsons; business has doubled and they are doing a huge banquet business. Lunch, dinner or Sunday champagne brunch here is a delightful dining experience ... JULIUS SUMODOBILA of San Francisco and SNOWY WINTERS of San Bruno won the grand prize trip to London in the big disco dance contest at LEHR'S CABARET DISCO in San Francisco. "All of the contestants were so good, it was difficult to judge," said genial host DEAN LEHR. "So we used an applause meter and let audience response pick the winners." A new disco dance contest starts Tuesday. Grand prize: a fabulous trip for two to Madrid, Spain ... CHRIS VLASSIS' LA PINATA Mexican restaurant in Burlingame offers 15 combination plates plus another 15 super specials guaranteed to put zip in your step. Open Mondays through Saturdays from 11:30 a.m., Sundays from 4 p.m. Also take out service ... Like a beacon light to wayfarers with jaded appetites, the bright neon sign of VINCE'S Italian and Seafood restaurant on El Camino beckons to a haven of dependable high quality and tastefully prepared specialties year in and year out.

John Chiang Offers Vegetarian Dishes

Vegetarian dishes are a gourmet's delight at GONG'S Chinese restaurant, South San Francisco. Chow Mein, Chop Suey, greens, mixed vegetables and vegetable bean cake are all offered daily by Owner JOHN CHIANG ... The new year is starting off big at BAYHILL LOUNGE. Club owner MEL CICERO has booked INDEED, a popular five-piece band, to entertain the dance crowds on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights ... LOUIS FRUTSCHI is very proud of his L'AUBERGE kitchen staff. Chef John Johansen, who has been at the Redwood City French restaurant since 1971, was recently singled out for praise. The culinary expert is constantly attempting to improve his techniques ... Luncheon service has temporarily been discontinued at BEARDSLEY'S, downtown Burlingame. Co-owner JACK O'BRIEN says it's because of the noise from construction taking place in the adjacent building. Now open at 4 p.m. for cocktails and dinner service ... Next time you visit NICK'S restaurant in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica, notice the engraved bronze plaque in the entry way. It tells you a lot about the warm feelings of Owners NICK and LORRAINE GUST and son CHARLES ("Chuck") and their employees and associates. The plaque was bestowed upon MARY ANN HAY, whose singing has entertained countless customers of this restaurant for more than 28 years. You can hear Mary Ann sing with JIMMY PAYER'S COMBO on Friday and Saturday nights and often times on Sunday nights. There are also THE MOONRAKER for continental cuisine and CAPTAIN CHARLES for gourmet seafood.

Conte's for Grand Opening Specials

Something good is happening in San Bruno! It's the opening of CONTE'S restaurant on El Camino near Fivepoints. Owner JOHN CONTE cordially invites all his friends, patrons from his former location in San Mateo (4th and B), and new customers alike to check his Grand Opening Specials, which will be featured all during the month of January . . . A name change is on the agenda for the Golden Door restaurant in downtown San Mateo, which will now be known as KUM LO. No, the restaurant hasn't changed hands. "Kum Lo" translates to Golden Lo in Chinese, reports Owner-chef K. C. LO. In celebration of the name change, Lo will be offering a special promotion through the month of January. One free dinner, equal to double the price of the dinner paid by the customer whose cash register receipt shows the number 100 . . . Full course businessmen's lunches ($2.95) are served at THE VAN'S restaurant. Banquet facilities for up to 40 persons are also available for special parties . . . Filet of Petrale Sole Saute en Meuniere Sauce, Bay Scallops, Jumbo Louisiana Prawns, Scampi, Baby Lobster Tails Saute in wine and garlic, and New York Steak are among the dinner entrees winning praise at THE BUNKER restaurant, Cypress Hills Golf Course. . . . New Year's resolutions to make 1979 a brighter and happier year will be easy to keep when you put BARNEY'S CASINO and nearby SOUTH TAHOE NUGGET at the top of your list of places to visit for "Fun the Nevada Way." Both of these popular clubs at South Lake Tahoe resolve to continue their policies of cordiality and consideration for their patrons, and to bring you even more enjoyment in 1979 . . . TERRY'S in Vallejo, with two locations (both sides of the highway), is a well favored stop with travelers heading for the Nevada snow country. Both restaurants provide 24 hour service and offer free promotional coupons for BARNEY'S in South Lake Tahoe . . .

Finocchio's Back In Full Swing

Now in full swing for another year of great entertainment, world famed FINOCCHIO'S in San Francisco continues to attract visitors and natives alike. The costumes, dancing and presentations of the EVE-ETTES, the glamorous chorus line of talented performers, LORI SHANNON LaVERNE CUMMINGS, Ventriloquist KENNY STEWART and his girls, Emcee CAROL WALLACE and all the other Finocchio entertainers are a delight to behold. Four shows nightly, except Monday and Thursday ... Most popular drink among holiday crowds at PHIL LEHR'S Pay-By-Ounce Steakery, on the lower level of the San Francisco Hilton Tower, was the Melon Driver, a super-delicious cocktail made with the new imported Midori and either fresh orange or lemon juice ... Busy as he is at his ROMANO'S Italian and Seafood restaurant, Rockaway Beach, ENRICO ROMANO still believes in giving of his time to the community of Pacifica. The "pizza baron" was vice president of the Pacifica Chamber of Commerce last year, and it is predicted that he will be president this year ... Regularly closed during luncheon hours, JIM SNIADECKI opened his SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S restaurant one recent Thursday at noontime in order that Jim Burnie of Dodge Center could bring in TV cameras and interview Sniadecki for a later TV showing.

Samuel Chandler

A short time ago an executive with a large corporation showed me a letter that he had written to a young man who had applied for a job. "Something is lacking in your fitness for this position, my friend. You do not speak with authority because you do not read enough. You think you can listen to the six o'clock news and know all that you need to know, but you are wrong. You must learn to read the newspaper page by page to learn what the newscaster cannot tell you. You would do well to become familiar with some of the great books and magazines of the world. They were written to translate great truths for you."

Such sentiments recall the words that Samuel L. Blumenfeld wrote for his "The New Illiterates" (Arlington House, 1973, $9.95). "My intention is to defend the American child's right to sound instruction in the most elementary of his learning skills: reading." Blumenfeld also wrote, "Most Americans are unaware of how serious the illiteracy problem is in the United States. They do not realize that it has reached the level of national disaster — a disaster that could remain with us well into the 21st century and from which we may never completely recover."

Further perusal of Blumenfeld's book shows that even vocal power is a by-product of reading. Merely hearing words pronounced is not enough. One must read to see the relationship of letters and words and concepts. As Walter Cronkite wrote, there is "a genuine crisis in communications. Since a democracy cannot flourish if its people are not adequately informed on the issues, the problem becomes one of the nation's survival."

Such words should lead parents to resolve that during 1979 their children will become readers, even if it means budgeting the house so there will be a time when the TV will go off and the children will read.

To help parents interest their children in reading, a number of excellent books have been produced. One of these is "A Parent's Guide to Children's Reading," by Nancy Larrick (Doubleday, $5.95). Here the former president of the International Reading Association writes that you can begin with a baby to cultivate a desire to read.

Larrick speaks of the importance of children sampling the nursery rhymes and the fairy tales as the authors and collectors wrote them. From King Arthur one learns how to cope with the failure of great ideals. In Sleeping Beauty one sees the powers of both hate and love. In Andersen's tales one sees the folly of false pride and of foolish love. Such lessons can be taught through reading to children and through requiring them to read and discuss the stories with their parents.

Ms. Larrick's work lists books and articles for children by age and reading level. It contains a chapter that discusses how to use libraries and bookstores to secure the books that children should read. For these and other reasons "A Parent's Guide to Children's Reading" has been called a book "that should be in the hands of every parent."

Margery Fisher's "Who's Who in Children's Books," (Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 1975—$22.95) is a different kind of a tool to assist parents in leading their children to the benefits of reading. In it characters from hundreds of books are arranged alphabetically among some excellent illustrations. The descriptions of the characters are superb. It has been called a book that never can be forgotten.

By consulting "Who's Who in Children's Books," parents can become familiar with characters that lead children to understand their world and enjoy it.

Parents are encouraged to use these or some other lists to select books for their children to read and then to borrow or buy the book and lead their children to the adventure of reading.

DUNCAN TO THE RESCUE

Former Jefferson High and College of San Mateo star Frank Duncan (45) joins Reggie Lewis to bring down the East's Steve Fuller in Saturday's East-West Whrine Game at Stanford. Duncan led the West in tackles with 11 and intercepted a pass, but his efforts went for naught.

Futile Exploits for West

Duncan Shines on Dim Day

By DICK DRAPER

Something to hang on to. An anchor in life. Something you're good at. Something to be proud of.

It's what every man needs.

And it's what Frank Duncan had: football.

The sport gave the Jefferson High and College of San Mateo star a chance to continue his education in college; it gave him confidence; it provided incentive to keep his grades good.

And it helped him discover what he wanted to do in life.

Duncan reached his collegiate football zenith Saturday, playing in the prestigious East-West Shrine Football Classic at Stanford Stadium.

The Daly City player made a team-high 11 tackles for the West and intercepted one pass, but it was futile as the East dominated contest, winning 56-17 with a sensational 49-point second half blitz, paced by the record six touchdowns and 199 yards rushing of Michigan's Russell Davis.

"If it hadn't been for football," said Duncan, "I probably wouldn't have gone to college at all. I would have gone to work with my father and godfather at their parking lot."

An honest occupation, but Duncan had higher, perhaps more meaningful apsirations.

"I'd like to be a social worker," he said. "I'm easy going, I like people, and I get involved in people's problems."

Duncan had plenty of on-the-job training with the Gators' football squad, which had nothing but problems in 1978, suffering through a 1-8 season.

Yet Duncan's talents shone through the gloom. He was tabbed as only the third SF State player in history to make the East-West classic.

"It was a shock to be picked," said Duncan. "I'm from a Division II school, and we didn't have a good season."

The contest was a perfect opportunity for Duncan to show his oft-overlooked skills before a myriad of pro scouts, but it also provided extra pressure.

"I tried to make it as pleasant as possible, but I was subconsciously aware of the pressure. The scouts were there — it was obvious. But I just tried to have a good time."

Seeing the crippled children at the Shriners' Hospital in San Francisco was an eye-opening experience for Duncan, and it gave him added incentive to play well in the contest.

"Meeting those kids, it was a real pleasant surprise," said Duncan. "Sometimes I feel bad with bruises and aches, but I'm not so cooped up like they are, and it was nice to see them smile."

While the game itself was distasteful for the West, the Easterners could smile — and leading the laughter was Davis, who averaged only six or eight carries a game for Michigan this season, was held to 28 yards in the Rose Bowl loss to USC and played in the shadow of the Big Ten team leader, Rick Leach.

But Saturday was his day. After the West led 17-7 at halftime, it was Davis versus the West — and Davis won hands down.

"This IS my best game, no doubt about it," said Davis, a highly recruited Virginian. "I can see my father's chest sticking way out to here."

Davis had only 31 yards rushing in the first half, but the East was held to minus two yards rushing overall, and it looked bleak.

But the East's option attack began clicking, and Davis was all but unstoppable, going for long gainers and those incredible six TDs.

"I showed them I could get the job done," said Davis of the pro scouts. "And it's certanly another favor on my behalf when it comes to the draft."

Regent Streak Halted

Late in the third quarter Friday night, with Westmoor High clinging to a 55-50 lead, Serramonte star forward Ricky Mixon ascended for a long jump shot. It was blocked.

The culprit, Westmoor forward Tony Limutau, streaked the length of the court with the loose ball for an uncontested layup.

"I think that block was the turning point. We really got psyched after that and put them away," Limutau said, with the nodding approval of his teammates.

Indeed, Limutau's key play sparked a 13-3 burst which blunted a Serramonte comeback and carried the Rams to an 82-68 victory over their cross-town North Peninsula League rivals.

Westmoor's triumph marked the end of Serramonte's 29-game NPL winning streak (discounting five forfeited games in 1977) over a period of three seasons. And Limutau's defense on Mixon played a critical role in Westmoor's second league win in as many games.

Sports And Recreation

"There was really no special defense. We just tried to deny him (Mixon) the ball," Limutau said.

Although Mixon scored 23 points, Limutau, with aid from teammates Troy Williams and Sheldon Scott, prevented Mixon from being the hub of the Serramonte offense.

"We ran a box-and-one defense, and Limutau did an excellent job on Mixon," said Westmoor Coach Tony Giammona.

While Westmoor was able to contain Mixon, Serramonte could not stop the Rams' fast-breaking offense triggered by the rebounding of Scott (16) and Williams (7).

"Our inside men (Scott and Williams) controlled the boards and that makes it easier for us to run, which we do better than a set-up offense," Giammona said.

Guard Derrick Johnson paced Westmoor's balanced scoring attack with a game-high 24 points, mostly on 15-foot jump shots off the fast break.

"I really wasn't looking to shoot, but when the shot is there, I will take it and that's what happened today," Johnson commented on his 11-for-20 performance from the field.

Giammona, obviously noting his squad's 56 percent field goal shooting, said the Rams may be now reaching their potential.

"We had been stumbling along for the last five or six preseason games but I think today we found ourselves. We shot better, played good defense, and controlled the boards," he said.

Mixon said Westmoor's defense did have an adverse affect on his below-par scoring performance.

"We had some bad breaks and some of my shots were not falling, but Westmoor is a veteran team and they really put it together in the second half. I just wish next time they would play a straight man-to-man instead of a box-and-one," the County scoring leader (30.0 ppg) said.

Based on Friday's results, the next time Serramonte and Westmoor meet, Mixon will more than likely challenge Limutau again.

More to Life Than Football: Madden

By GARRY NIVER

No doubt about it. That Madden boy from up Daly City way forged quite a name for himself in the game of football.

By now, the reality of John Madden's announced retirement as head coach of the Oakland Raiders has sunk in, and the amiable 1954 graduate of Jefferson High School is probably wondering what he's going to do for the rest of today. And tomorrow. And the next day.

It will seem strange not to see that huge hulk of a man, his red neck and flushed face jutting out of an open blue shirt — heated and raging up and down the sidelines at an Oakland Raider game.

He filled that role for 10 years. And Thursday afternoon — in the very same room he made his bow in 1967 as the new head coach of the Oakland Raiders — Madden announced his retirement in a rambling and often emotional speech.

Of course, the speculative rhetoric will follow John where ever he goes. Some journalists — the ones who actually believe that the divine truth only spews forth from their typewriters or microphones — will insist that Madden was forced out by scheming Managing General Partner Al Davis.

But Madden — a strict, God-fearing Catholic — just doesn't go around telling fibs of that magnitude. And especially not in front of the largest assemblage of sports press since the 1960 Winter Olympics.

"I swear to God," stated John, his right palm raised to the sky, "this was strictly my decision. That's why I insisted on a press conference like this with everybody here. I didn't want to leave any room for speculation.

"You know, there's more to life than just football — and now I'm going to find out about it."

Madden admitted the rigors of 10 years as head coach of a team which was a perennial playoff contender wore him out.

"I gave everything I had for 10 years," said John. "And there just wasn't anything left."

John said he first realized this might be his last season when doctors detected a duodenal ulcer last year prior to the NFL draft.

"I guess I knew this day was coming. I had feelings about it then. I'm a very emotional and sensitive person. I guess that I let most of my emotions out during the games, but my sensitivity stayed in.

"I didn't have any relaxing hobbies like golf or fishing. I only knew one way. And that was to go 100 percent, full-steam all of the time."

As the 1978 season progressed — and the Raiders became locked in football life-and-death struggles — he realized that his decision was close at hand.

MADDEN'S FOOTBALL FAREWELL

John Madden, coach of the Oakland Raiders for the past 10 years, tells the media Thursday that he is resigning from the coaching profession due to ulcers and the pressures of high-powered NFL football.

"I guess I really knew that this day would come the day I won the Super Bowl," said John, alluding to Oakland's 32-14 victory over Minnesota in Super Bowl X on January 9, 1977.

"No doctor advised me to quit," stated Madden. "I just decided on my own. Near the end of the last season I told my wife, Virginia, and my sons (Michael and Joey). Then I called Al (Davis) and told him I wanted to talk to him.

"I told him I gave everything I had for 10 years and that I had accomplished everything I'd ever wanted to do in football. I told him I was through. I wasn't quitting, I wasn't resigning — I was retiring.

"What the hell I do from now on, I really don't know. I started young and I retired young (42 years of age). Now it's my family's turn. They were born into a coach's life and they've always adjusted to my life. Now I'm going to adjust to their life.

"I'm going to ask them what they want to do for a change. Hell, may be they just want to go to a museum and sit," quipped John.

"I really don't know what I want to do," said Virginia. "That part of the speech has taken me by surprise. I've never really thought about it, but ask me tomorrow and I might have an idea."

John said that walking away from the Raiders — which he admitted had provided him the "10 happiest years of my life" — wasn't that difficult.

But Virginia disagreed.

"Standing up there on the podium was probably the hardest part of it for John," she surmised. "He's very attracted to the players and loyal to the Raider organization.

"As for right now," said Virginia, "I guess we'll just go home and let it sink in."

Home for the Madden family is Pleasanton.

Madden was adamant about the statement that he'd never coach again.

"Yes, unequivocally, I'll never coach again. I don't know how much more strongly I can put it." He did reveal that he still had "more than a year" left on his Raider contract, which presumably would be honored by Davis.

"John Madden will always be an Oakland Raider and there will always be a place for him here," said Davis.

Lundgren Ignites Big Skyline Rally

SUISUN CITY — A 29-point scoring splurge by Skyline College guard Rick Lundgren helped the Trojans reverse a 20-point deficit and take an 87-65 triumph over host Solano Wednesday night.

That gave Skyline a 10-5 season record and a five-game win streak entering Coast Conference play today at Gavilan College in Gilroy (7:30 p.m.).

Skyline trailed Solano by 20 points with six minutes left in the first half Wednesday night. But Trojan coach Lyle Newcomer put on a press that enabled Skyline to outscore the Falcons, 21-4, until the intermission and trail just 41-38. Nate Broussard and Lundgren each tallied six points during that spurt.

"In the second half we came out of the press and went to a straight 2-3 and got a lot of fast breaks," said Newcomer.

Skyline caught the Falcons with 17:50 left on a fast break pass from Reggie Love to James Reed. The lead changed hands six times and the score was tied twice before Louis Reynaud's lay-up put Skyline on top 59-57 with 8:55 to go.

With Lundgren hitting eight more points down the stretch, the Trojans padded their lead. The 6-0 soph out of Burlingame High sank 13 of 25 from the field and had three assists.

Reynaud tallied 20 points, while

Rick Lundgren

Love had 12 points, 12 assists and 11 rebounds. Rebound leader, however, was Trojan center Brad Levesque with 13. Reed added nine.

Sharks Nip TN By One

Oceana High scored a thrilling 63-62 victory over crosstown rival Terra Nova Wednesday night when 6-2 center Craig Jamerson hit a 15-foot jumper at the buzzer in the team's NPL opener.

It had been a close game all night, with Oceana taking a three-point lead going into the final stanza. With 26 seconds remaining to play, Jess Whipple hit two crucial free throws on a one-and-one situation to give Oceana a 61-60 lead.

The Tigers raced down the floor to wrestle the lead back with 20 seconds left, setting up the winning basket.

Le Pacini

There's something about Woody Hayes that I've always wondered about. I've always wondered why some newspaper or television reporter or photographer, or some student or Ohio State rival player — or one of his own players — never hauled off and belted him in the chops.

I think that such an act might have saved the pathetic old geezer, allowed him to go out graciously. Somebody just plain knocking him on his fanny. In public. That's how most bullies are subdued, and Lord knows, Woody Hayes always has been a bully.

Think back to all the neighborhood and schoolyard bullies you've ever known. They shoved people around, verbally and physically, as long as they were allowed to believe that they had that unmitigated right to do so.

Inevitably one of the meekest kids around the street or the yard would blow up (because he would be the one the bully naturally picked on most often) and clean the bully's clock in front of a group.

And, often, the bully would return to our society a reasonably nice person — or at least acting nice, lest he get his block knocked off again.

Woody needed that, and he never got it.

Ohio State officials had many opportunities to knock Woody symbolically on his rear, but that was when Woody was winning.

I find it patently convenient for Ohio State President Harold Enarson and OSU Athletic Director Hugh Hindman to decide suddenly, after all these years, that Woody was an embarrassment to the high moral standards of the university during the same year that he turned 65 and his team lost five games.

And even more convenient that Lou Holtz was so suddenly (literally only a few hours after the firing) found to be possibly available as a replacement.

It sort of gives one the feeling that maybe Woody was on his way out anyway, and that his punch-out of Clemson linebacker Charlie Bauman merely provided those great midwestern moralists with a perfect excuse.

Lost in all that controversy was the fact that Woody took a whack at Bauman only because the old coach is a sore loser and that he wouldn't have been losing at that point had he chosen to go for a chip-shot field goal when Ohio drove near the Clemson goal line on its first possession.

Hayes instead opted to go for it on fourth and one — a gamble so early in the game that was completely out of character. The Buckeyes didn't make it, and that's what eventually lost the 17-15 game.

Well, I refuse to get excited over Woody Hayes. It's perfectly legitimate to be concerned if you're one of those purists who still think that big-time college football is glorious and that its coaches build character.

If that's the case, you rightfully should be disgusted with Hayes.

But, if you perceive big-time college football for what it really is — a cut-throat big business — then look more kindly on ol' Woody, because he was just doing what was expected of him, but made the mistake of doing it in public once too often.

I just think it's ironic, and maybe a little sad, that the year Woody Hayes finally discovered the forward pass, is the year he went out.

Can't get away from that Gator Bowl. I'm still trying to understand my own ignorance, after hearing Ara Parseghian, the color expert for the game, explain that it wouldn't do any good for Clemson to try for a field goal when they had their 17-15 lead late in the game and were driving.

As it turned out, they never got the opportunity. But wouldn't a field goal have given Clemson a 20-15 lead, which would have meant that it could be beaten only by a touchdown?

I don't understand how KNBR so cavalierly can let Lon Simmons slip away from next season's Giants broadcasts. He's not only one of the best baseball play-by-play men in the country, he's also perhaps the only one who doesn't take himself or the game too seriously, and that's a quality which may be impossible to replace.

Listening to Simmons broadcast games isn't just informational, it's fun. I shudder to think what listening to Giants games when they were losing would have been like without Simmons to help us over the rough spots by reminding us all that, well, it's only a game, folks.

If I were Bob Lurie, I'd use all the owner pressure (it's considerable) I could bring to bear on KNBR to get Simmons back in the booth.

ODDS CHART-Series SC 79

As a result of the recent labor dispute, the commencement of Instant Bingo (Series SC-79) was delayed. Accordingly, Instant Bingo is now scheduled to terminate April 7, 1979, rather than on the date printed on the game materials.

INFLATION FIGHTING ideas

1. "What's in a Name?"

The U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs states: "Most large supermarket chains sell private label foods and household products. These private label or house brands are usually less expensive and equal in quality to national brands. In many cases supermarkets purchase their house brand goods from the same companies that manufacture nationally advertised brands."

Because of various cost savings, including lower promotional cost, house brands can be sold for less.

Safeway generally prices its own top-quality (S) Brands lower than national brands of comparable quality and you can always depend on their consistently high quality. Every (S) Brand is unconditionally guaranteed to please.

Each product in the entire (S) Brand line is identified with the red (S) and the words "FINEST SAFEWAY QUALITY." Rigid quality specifications must be met before the familiar (S) goes on the label. Customers acquainted with (S) Brands know the products are comparable to top national brands... but they cost less.

Get to know Safeway's family of (S) Brands, including Town House, Bel-air, Lucerne, Edwards, Safeway, Mrs. Wright's, and many others. They're your staunch allies in the battle against inflation.
